Creating a planet where children can live in peace

Policy of Peace Piece Project

Message from the Representative

Raising Children to Create World Peace

● Aiming for activities that will last 100 years like the Olympic and Paralympic Games

The name of the organization, Peace Piece Project, was chosen in the hope that our small thoughts for peace (Peace) would come together to form a big peace (Peace). The logo also represents a positive heart sending out to the world, so that all our activities will bring smiles to children's faces.

I was born and raised in Hiroshima. I grew up watching my great-grandmother, who lost everything in the atomic bombing, raise my young mother on her own, rebuild her business, and contribute to society. When I was 10 years old, I was in a car accident and suffered a brain hemorrhage that left me in a critical condition. However, I miraculously survived, and as a token of my gratitude, I decided to become an entrepreneur to benefit society.

When I was a high school student, I participated in a volunteer activity to show students from Japan and abroad around Peace Memorial Park, which inspired me to start thinking about communicating the importance of peace from Hiroshima.

Since the start of our activities in 2009, we have set a Guinness World Record for the "World's Largest Paper Crane," worked to bring the Olympic Games to Hiroshima, published the comic book "The Hiroshima Miracle" in Japanese, English, and French, and since 2020, we have held the annual "Children's World Peace Summit" supported by the Ministry of Foreign.

Our goal is to hold this Summit with 100 million children from 100 countries, and to make it a "wisdom festival for creating peace" that will continue for 100 years, just like the Olympics and Paralympics. If you agree with our activities, We hope that the future of our children will be a world full of love and peace.

■ Contributing to the achievement of the SDGs

The SDGs are the Sustainable Development Goals, adopted at the United Nations Summit in September 2015, are a set of goals common to the world until 2030. The Peace Piece Project will contribute to the realization of a sustainable society through activities to nurture children who will create peace.

■ Mission and Vision of Peace Piece Project

All of our activities contribute to the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) which is an action plan for humans, and the planet to ensure our ongoing prosperity, promoting by the UN.

● Mission Significance and mission of the Peace Piece Project

Realization of World Peace ~ Creating a Safe and Secure Earth for Children ~

There are children who are unable to live in peace due to their environment, social conditions, and various other reasons. No matter what kind of environment a child is born and raised in, his or her "peace" should never be threatened. The future of the earth will be created by the children who live in the future. If children are left in a state where they do not know how to create "peace," "If children are left in a state where they do not know how to create "peace," it will have a serious impact on the human resources who will be active in the country, local communities, and companies in the future, resulting in a great social loss.

It is a very urgent and important issue to create a planet where children can live with peace of mind. We, the Peace Piece Project, define world peace as the creation of a planet where children can live in peace. In order to achieve this goal, we are raising children who will create peace.

● Vision Goals to be achieved to achieve world peace

Raise children who will create peace

In current peace education, there are opportunities to learn about the history of war and nuclear weapons in their own countries, but there are few opportunities to learn how to create peace.

In addition to learning about the history of war, we need a place to learn how to think concretely about how to create peace.

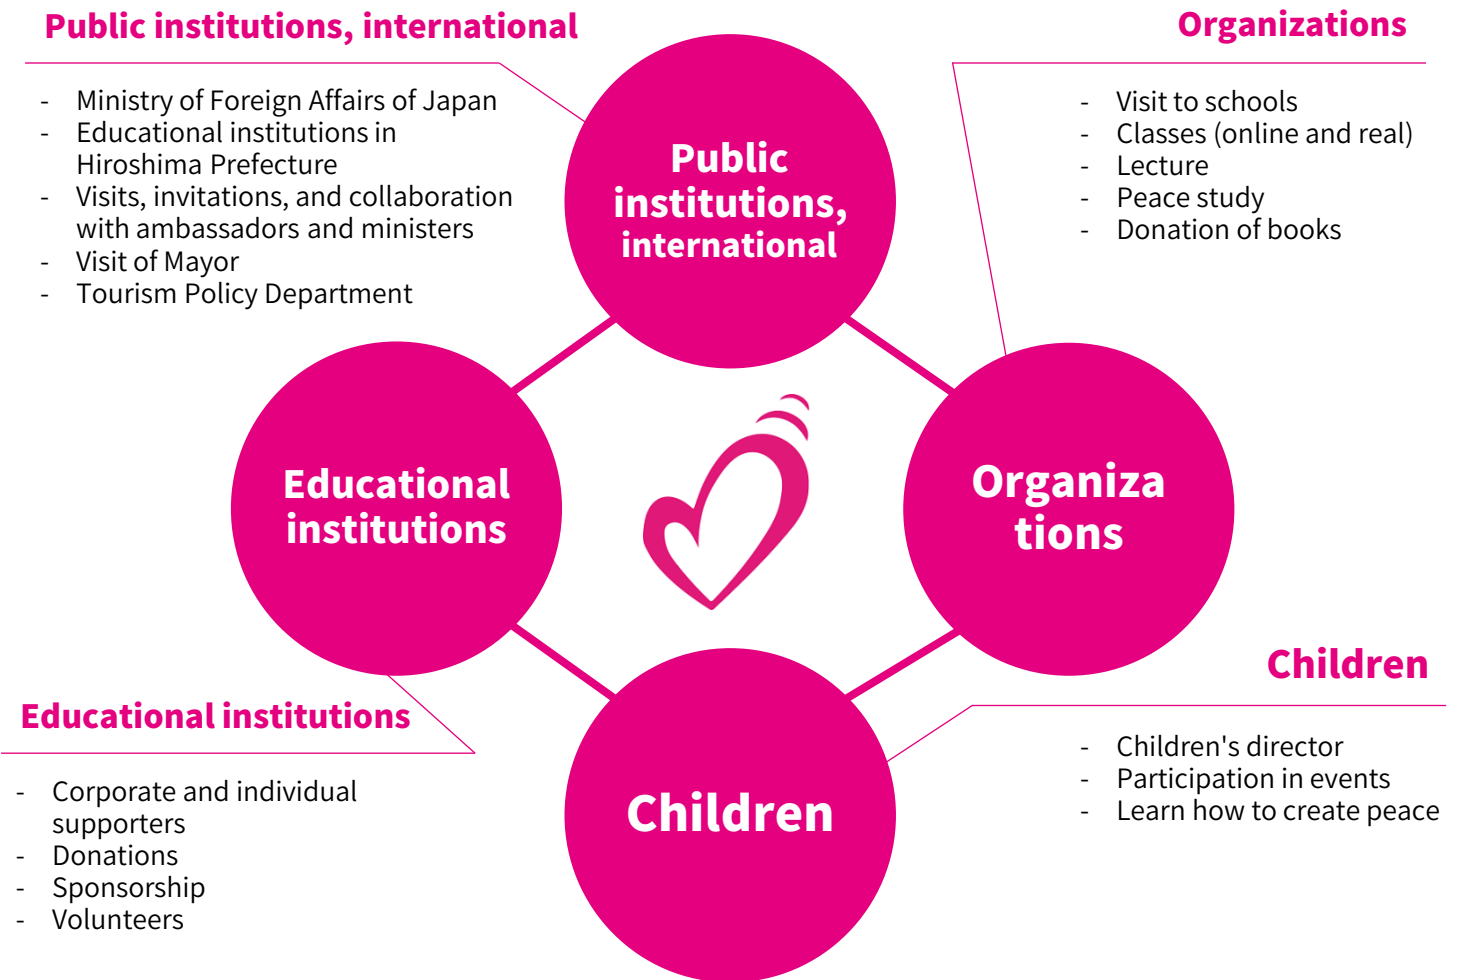

We publish peace education books in many languages and use them in educational settings.

We also hold the "Children's World Peace Summit" to present ideas for creating peace.

We hope that the experience of learning and thinking proactively about peace with multinational children during their teenage years, when they are developing both mentally and physically, will make them interested in international cooperation and give them the ability to play an active role in international society in the future.

Track record of collaboration with highly credible institutions

To date, we have held events under the auspices of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Japan, conducted activities in cooperation with educational institutions such as boards of education and schools, and have collaborated with highly credible institutions in Japan and abroad, such as speaking at FCEM, which has more than 120 member countries, and participating in IWFCI, which has chapters in 13 countries. By participating in and supporting the various activities of the Peace Piece Project, you will be able to increase your social value and credibility in the future and create new value as a company, organization, or individual.

What is "TEAM EXPO 2025" Program / Co-Creation Challenge?

■ Pillars of Activity

Peace Piece Project promotes activities to learn about and think about peace with children in their teens, when they are at a critical stage in their physical and mental development, in order to realize "a planet where children can live in peace" = "world peace".

If you agree with our activities, we would be honored if you would support us by registering as a Peace Supporter.

In brain science, it is said that when you ask a question, the brain keeps searching for the answer. "What is world peace?" "How can we create world peace?"

Children's brains gather information and take action to get the answers. What they envision, even if only vaguely or vaguely, will become a reality. It is our hope that children will realize world peace through the forms they can take and the dreams they can make, now and in the future.

Activities of the Peace Piece Project

Guinness World Records: World's Largest Paper Crane (2009-2010)

On August 29-30, 2009, we challenged Guinness World Records with a giant origami crane with a total of over 800 volunteers at Hiroshima Shudo University. It was completed at 8:00 p.m. on the 30th, and was certified by Guinness World Records as a new record with 81.94m wings and 36m height (larger than the 19.7m Gundam on display in Odaiba). It still holds the Guinness record as of 2021.

The paper used to make the paper cranes was a synthetic paper that resembles a plastic material that is not afraid to get wet. Each person held a sheet of paper about one meter wide and folded it by hand from a huge 100 meter by 100 meter sheet made by joining rolls of paper together. It adopted a new way of weaving origami cranes, where the paper is folded only once during the 20-step process. The paper weighed about 1,000 kilograms (1 ton). Finally, the paper cranes were raised by a crane and completed. This was the world's first outdoor event of its kind. We would like to express our heartfelt gratitude to all the volunteers who participated in the event and to all the people involved for their support.

■ Olympic bid campaign to Hiroshima (Until 2010)

In February 2010, we formed the “2020 Hiroshima Olympic Supporters” and carried out signature activities to hold the Olympic in Hiroshima. As a result, we were able to submit a signature to mayor Hiroshima with approval from over 600,000 (total number of 603,186 people).

Olympic games were founded by French “Pierre de Frédy, baron de Coubertin”, hundreds of decades ago from now.

The purpose is to harmoniously develop mind and body through sports and to contribute to “world peace”.

We believe that by "sending a message of peace from Hiroshima to the world" through the Olympic Games in Hiroshima, which has successfully recovered from the atomic bombing, we can light a fire for cooperation rather than confrontation in the hearts of each and every one of us, and that this fire will become a large torch that will light up the whole world, so we started our bid activities.

President Obama, moved. Hiroshima reconstruction cartoon.

After World War II, Hiroshima achieved a miraculous recovery in terms of spirit and life. The true story of these strong and beautiful women, who did not stagnate with resentment or hatred toward anyone, but lived forward with a heart of forgiveness, has been made into a comic book for peace education.

The manga was originally published in 2015 and is based on the true story of Ms. Taeko Tada's great-grandmother, who raised her mother, who lost her parents in the atomic bombing, by herself, while continuing to contribute to the community by reviving her business.

As of October 2021, it has been published in Japanese, English, and French. It is also being used as a teaching material for peace education in elementary and junior high schools.

Aiming to publish in 6 official UN languages and adopt as a peace education textbook

So far, we have published in Japanese, English and French. However, in order for children around the world to read this cartoons and learn how to create peace, we need to work in the languages that are spoken in their countries.

First of all, we will publish the book in the six official languages of the United Nations (English, French, Arabic, Chinese, Russian, and Spanish), which are used by many people. Please support us as a corporate or individual supporter.

Educational institutions can use the PDF version

You are welcome to use them in your classes. Please feel free to use our free e-book. If you contact us, we can send you a PDF version.

If you send us your comments and photos, we will use them carefully in our activities to nurture children to create peace.

President Obama was moved by the “The Hiroshima Miracle”

On April 14, 2016, we donated "The Hiroshima Miracle" to Ms. Caroline Kennedy, US Ambassador to Japan to make President Obama's visit to Hiroshima a reality. Ms. Kennedy gave us a thank-you letter saying, "I will send it to Washington (President Obama)." And on May 27, 2016, President Obama's visit to Hiroshima was realized.

At a later date, President Obama gave us a thank-you letter saying, "I am moved by your story."

<Letter from President Obama>

Dear Taeko:

I am moved by your story. I visited Hiroshima to reaffirm my commitment to working toward a world without nuclear weapons.

We have a shared responsibility to look directly into the eye of history and ask what we must do differently to prevent such suffering from ever happening again.

It is through the examples set by the hibakusha that we are able to define ourselves not by our capacity for war, but by our common humanity. Since that fateful day, we have made choices that give us hope, and stories like yours are a testament to how far we have come.

So long as more people take the time to understand the past and embrace compassion, I am confident a brighter, more peaceful future lies ahead.

Thank you, again, for sharing your story with me. I wish you all the best.

Sincerely, Barack Obama

Dear Ms. Tada:

Thank you so much for sending two copies of The Hiroshima Miracle – Hiroshima is in the Pink. I look forward to sharing them with my Embassy colleagues and guests. We will also send a copy to Washington. I appreciate your thoughtfulness.

The foundation of the U.S. Government's non-proliferation efforts is the clear understanding and recognition of the human consequences of the use of nuclear weapons. I was deeply moved by my visits to Hiroshima and Nagasaki and hope that these visits help to advance President Obama's goal of realizing a world without nuclear weapons.

Peace class with 367 students from Shimizu Junior High School in Matsumoto City, Nagano

On Tuesday, October 20, 2020, I gave a peace class with 367 students of Shimizu Junior High School in Matsumoto City, Nagano Prefecture.

It was difficult to get children to suddenly think, "What should we do to achieve world peace?", however, we were able to give them an image of how they can create world peace and contribute to society through their dreams in ways they can imagine and in ways they can do, such as "becoming a soccer player" or "becoming a comedian and making everyone laugh. The purpose of this class was to open their eyes to the world, and at the same time, we hoped that they would realize the importance of living and being alive. Here are some of the comments from the students.

I always think "I can't do it..." before I do something, and it's hard for me to do it, but I realized that it's important to believe that I can do it before you say I can't do it. I also realized that it would be nice if I could make at least one person happy in my life.

The lecture made me think about many things, such as "peace" and what we can do now. We live our lives as a matter of course, but I thought that each one of them already represents peace. I hope that the circle of mutual help will expand all over the world so that everyone can be happy.

After listening to Ms. Tada's talk, I was able to rethink what peace is. It was wonderful to know that the small thoughts of one person who thinks about peace can come together to create something big that can bring peace to Japan and the world.

It touched my heart to know that the first step to making our dreams come true is not to wonder if we can do it, but to give it a try. I think it's great that the circle of our activities is expanding, and I would like to thank the members for planning and preparing so much for this event.

Peace may not be something that we think about very often. But I would like to talk to my family about today's lecture and make the people around me smile. In order to do that, I tried to be happy as well.

Thinking about how to achieve world peace with the teens from around the world

At this summit, children's interest in international cooperation can be increased and the ability to play an active role in the realization of world peace in the international community can be developed, at an important time for teens to develop both physically and mentally.

Sorane Sakihama (18 years old, Japan)

Realizing "Yugafu" by working together with countries around the world to create a single history textbook
 Yugafu is an Okinawan word that means peace and happiness in the world. My idea to make the world peaceful is to cooperate with countries around the world to make one history textbook.

Create an educational platform so that all people can receive equal education
 My idea of peace is that each and every person has an equal opportunity to receive an education. In order to achieve this, I think what is necessary is to set up an educational platform that can be accessed by anyone as long as they have a device. I hope that we can create a society where children from all backgrounds have equal access to education so that they can become the people they want to be.

Honoa Tojo (11 years old, Japan)

Let's raise SDGs native children who create peace together!

The Children's World Peace Summit is officially registered as a co-creation challenge in the TEAM EXPO 2025 program of the Expo '2025 Osaka-Kansai. We are aiming to hold a "Children's World Peace Summit" where 100 million children from 100 countries around the world will present their ideas for creating peace and realize world peace.

We would be honored if you could support us and help us raise children who will create peace together.

For more information, please contact the Secretariat at info@peacepieceproject.com.

Addressing common international and global issues

The Children's World Peace Summit will contribute to the achievement of the SDGs, an action plan for people, planet and prosperity.

The SDGs are international goals for the period up to 2030 that were adopted at the UN Summit in September 2015. The SDGs consist of 17 goals and 169 targets, including poverty, health and well-being, education, job satisfaction, and climate change for humanity, the planet, and prosperity based on the pledge that "no one on Earth will be left behind."

Through the "Children's World Peace Summit",

Peace Piece Project will contribute to the following development goals in particular.

Education for Sustainable Development ~ Quality Education

4.7 By 2030, ensure that all learners acquire the knowledge and skills needed to promote sustainable development, including, among others, through education for sustainable development and sustainable lifestyles, human rights, gender equality, promotion of a culture of peace and non-violence, global citizenship and appreciation of cultural diversity and of culture's contribution to sustainable development

By interacting with the people of the country, eating, and seeing the streets, I can feel their worries and problems firsthand and understand their joys, sorrows, and emotions. I participate in robotics competitions every year. So in the future I would like to form a team with people from all over the world, meet them in person, eat and sleep together, understand each other, and work on issues.

Reduce inequality within and among countries

10.2 By 2030, empower and promote the social, economic and political inclusion of all, irrespective of age, sex, disability, race, ethnicity, origin, religion or economic or other status

In developing countries, "fair trade," which ensures that those involved in trade and producers receive fair compensation for their labor and production, enables farmers and producers' children to go to school. It also helps to reduce conflict, which is also a cause of poverty.

Promote just, peaceful and inclusive societies ~ Eliminate violence and death by violence

16.1 Significantly reduce all forms of violence and related death rates everywhere
16.7 Ensure responsive, inclusive, participatory and representative decision-making at all levels

I think we should create more opportunities to consult with nursery school and kindergarten teachers who are familiar with children, and also create a place where children from one month old to the oldest can be taken care of 24 hours a day at any time. This way, parents can take a rest and children can have the experience of making friends.

In addition to the above Contributing to the achievement of all SDGs through the ideas of children participating in the Children's World Peace Summit

The horror in post-bombing Hiroshima is captured in black-and-white photos of the city and its beleaguered survivors.

But Taeko Tada, whose mother survived the U.S. atomic bombing at the age of 5, has a different take on the tragedy, as her self-published manga focuses on the happier faces of women who let go of their pain, decided to forgive and helped rebuild the city.

In her book entitled "The Hiroshima Miracle: Hiroshima is in the Pink!" Tada, 47, uses the color pink on its cover and title to reflect her desire to depict the atomic-bomb survivors' tales as one that brings hope and joy to people. Pink is her favorite color which represents joy.

But Taeko Tada, whose mother survived the U.S. atomic bombing at the age of 5, has a different take on the tragedy, as her self-published manga focuses on the happier faces of women who let go of their pain, decided to forgive and helped rebuild the city.

"The Hiroshima Miracle: Hiroshima is in the Pink!" uses the color pink on its cover to depict the hibakusha experience as one of hope and joy.

"I wanted people to know more of the brighter side of Hiroshima, that this city is in the pink and filled with happiness as a result of efforts by women like my great-grandmother to rebuild the city after the atomic bomb," said Tada, 47, a representative of the Hiroshima-based Peace Piece Project.

"Hiroshima is not just an atomic-bombed city with a sad history but also with a story of rising above the tragedy. I wanted to retell the stories of women who struggled and played key roles in reconstruction efforts and how women forgave and helped each other."

Tada's great-grandmother lost her daughter-in-law at age 56 due to the effects of the atomic bomb and raised Tada's mother alone.

Tada released the manga in five booklets last year, to mark 70 years since the end of World War II. It was printed in English in March and will be available on iBooks.

Obama's speech during his historic visit Friday to Hiroshima as the first sitting U.S. president to do so, especially since he mentioned a story about forgiveness, a theme that reverberates in her manga.

In his address, Obama spoke of a woman who forgave the pilot who flew the plane that dropped the bomb "because she recognized what she really hated was war itself."

Tada's 172-page book features her great-grandmother's ordeal in the aftermath of the bombing. Tada said she was very young when her great-grandmother died but vividly recalls her inspiring words about how it is better to forgive than to be stuck in the past.

The manga also features the story of a mother who cheered on a struggling baseball team in Hiroshima in honor of her son and a woman who was known as one of the "Hiroshima Maidens" invited to the United States for reconstructive surgery.

Recounting her experience in high school, Tada said she was shocked when, as a volunteer guide for foreign visitors, she was asked if the people in Hiroshima still hated Americans.

"(The) atomic bombing is a serious subject and sometimes discourages people to come here. People feel heavy after touring through the Peace Memorial Park and other atomic bomb-related sites," she said.

She said her manga received positive feedback from atomic bomb survivors, who thanked her for sharing sentiments they could not quite articulate.

"We cannot live in the past. We cannot change what happened," Tada said. Her message is to live toward the future: "This is the Hiroshima I want people to know."
